

Great news! Our school now offers access to ProQuest Historical Newspapers, offering us a unique, affordable collection of historical documents.

Every newspaper issue is reproduced, cover-to-cover, in full-page digital images—from news stories and editorials to graphics and advertisements.

Delivering the The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, The Washington Post, The Christian Science Monitor, and others, ProQuest Historical Newspapers offers an unparalleled resource for the study of historical events, social and consumer history, economics, and much more.

Tap into effective research strategies presented in User, Teacher, and Citation guides, available online at <http://www.proquestk12.com>.

How will this new service help?

- Search across more than 3.5 million pages of full-image documents in a single query.
- Explore the past from 1851 to 2000 with the full run of The New York Times.
- Use compelling primary source materials for research.
- Read first-hand accounts of news events.

What can you and your students do?

- Search or browse from a variety of historical newspaper sources.
- You can print, save, or email for your own or student use.
- Review essential charts, illustrations, photos, advertisements, maps, graphs, and diagrams from the original articles.
- Track trends, events, and innovations across more than a century of information.
